ANNOUNCEMENTS

First Five Promise Zones Designees Announced
On January 9th, in the East Room of the White House, the President announced the first five “Promise Zones”, located in the Eastside neighborhood of San Antonio, Philadelphia, a section of Los Angeles that stretches from Pico-Union to Hollywood, Southeastern Kentucky, and the Choctaw Nation of Oklahoma. Several of the designees are in neighborhoods or areas that have received Choice Neighborhoods, Promise Neighborhoods, and Byrne grants. Designees will have access to on-the-ground federal partners, resources, and grant preferences. The full text of the announcement is available here. Read more about Promise Zones on the White House site and the HUD site.

Expertise Exchange: Constituent Voice and Engagement
In this webinar, a panel from Child Trends, Urban Institute, and Social Solutions will address the potential benefits of involving clients or program participants, how to put in place a formal process for gathering their input, as well as ways of involving them in more extensive ways. We will discuss questions related to the best ways of involving different populations, how to make it an affordable and integral part of program operations, how to avoid overburdening people with requests for feedback, and how to know whether efforts are successful. When registering, submit your question, and you may be selected to ask it “on the air,” which offers you the opportunity to engage in more depth with our panelists. We will also take questions through chat. The webinar will held Thursday, January 16th at 3:00 – 4:30 PM EST. Click here for more information and to register.

School Discipline Guidance Package to Enhance School Climate and Improve School Discipline Policies/Practices
The U.S. Department of Education (ED), in collaboration with the U.S. Department of Justice (DOJ), recently released a school discipline guidance package that will assist states, districts and schools in developing practices and strategies to enhance school climate, and ensure those policies and practices comply with federal law. Even though incidents of school violence have decreased overall, too many schools are still struggling to create positive, safe environments. Schools can improve safety by making sure that climates are welcoming and that responses to misbehavior are fair, non-discriminatory and effective. Each year, significant numbers of students miss class due to suspensions and expulsions—even for minor infractions of school rules—and students of color and with disabilities are disproportionately impacted. The guidance package provides resources for creating safe and positive school climates, which are essential for boosting student academic success and closing achievement gaps. The resource documents can be found here.

FUNDING OPPORTUNITIES

Kellogg Foundation Leadership Development Fellowship Program
The W.K. Kellogg Foundation (WKKF) has launched the WKKF Community Leadership Network, a three-year fellowship program for community-based leaders. The Community Leadership Network seeks to develop the leadership skills of individuals working to assist vulnerable children and families in achieving optimal health and well-being, academic success, and financial security. WKKF has committed six years of support to develop three cohorts of 120 fellows. Every fellow will receive an annual stipend of $20,000 and will be reimbursed for travel expenses as they expand their leadership skills at quarterly meetings with others in their fellowship cohort. In the third year of the program, each fellow will also receive $5,000 to execute his or her action plan. Applications must be received by January 14, 2014. Click here to learn more.

Blackstone Charitable Foundation RFP for Veteran Employment Organizations
The Blackstone Charitable Foundation has issued a Request for Proposals to identify organizations and programs that directly support veterans employment and professional development. Grants will range from $10,000 to $50,000. Nonprofit organizations serving veterans and active servicemen and women transitioning to civilian life are eligible to apply. Applications must be received by January 14, 2014. Click here for more information.

Funding for Transitional Living Programs and Maternity Group Homes
The U.S. Department of Health and Human Services has made approximately $6 million in funding available to provide runaway and homeless youth an alternative to law enforcement, child welfare, mental health, and juvenile justice systems. Temporary living programs must provide basic life skills, including money management, budgeting, consumer education and use of credit, parenting skills (as appropriate), interpersonal skill building, educational advancement, job attainment skills, and mental and physical health care, as appropriate. Approximately 31
Grants ranging from $100,000 to $200,000 will be allocated. Applications must be received by January 15, 2014. Click here to read the funding announcement.

National Endowment for the Arts’ Big Read Program
The Big Read, a grant program sponsored by the National Endowment for the Arts, seeks to restore reading to the center of American culture by providing competitive grants that support innovative reading programs in selected communities. Participating organizations will develop and produce reading programs that encourage reading and engagement with diverse local audiences. Eligible activities include author readings, book discussions, art exhibits, lectures, film series, music or dance events, theatrical performances, panel discussions, and other events and activities related to a book or poet from the Big Read Library. Nonprofit organizations are eligible to apply. Approximately 75 organizations will be selected to participate and receive a grant, educational and promotional materials, and access to online training resources and opportunities. Grants range from $2,500 to $20,000 and must be matched on a 1:1 basis with non-federal funds. Applications must be received by January 28, 2014. Click here to read more.

Family Literacy Grants
The Wish You Well Foundation provides grants to nonprofit organizations actively promoting family literacy in the United States. Grants range from $2,000 to $10,000. Requests can be submitted at any time and are reviewed four times per year. Proposals should align with the Wish You Well Foundation’s mission of “supporting family literacy in the United States by fostering and promoting the development and expansion of new and existing literacy and educational programs.” Click here for more information on how to apply.

Coca-Cola Foundation Community Education Projects
The Coca-Cola Foundation partners with nonprofit organizations worldwide to support programs that focus on four categories: Education, Healthy and Active Lifestyles, Water Stewardship, and Community Recycling. For example, the Education portfolio focuses on scholarships, school dropout prevention, access to education programs, and other education initiatives. Applications may be submitted online throughout the year. Nonprofit organizations are eligible to apply. Click here to learn more about the Coca-Cola Foundation’s grantmaking activities. RESEARCH AND PUBLICATIONS

Moving to Educational Opportunity – A Housing Demonstration
On December 9, 2013, the Urban Institute published an analysis of a housing mobility demonstration designed to improve the educational outcomes of students in families in low-performing, high-poverty schools. A randomized-control trial was used to provide subsidized households with prescreened lists of available housing in neighborhoods with high-quality, low-poverty schools. The report also includes a literature review of residential and school choice decision-making. Click here to access the report.

Best Practices for Energy Savings in Multifamily Buildings
The MacArthur Foundation, and American Council for an Energy-Efficient Economy have released a report outlining the 10 best practices for designing and implementing effective energy efficiency programs for multifamily buildings. Research indicates that, due to a number of challenges for building owners, multifamily households are often underserved by energy efficiency programs. This report provides a list of case studies, potential ideas for energy saving, and strategies for reaching new customers. Click here to read the report.

Summer Learning and After School Resources
The latest science, technology, engineering, and math (STEM) issue brief from the Afterschool Alliance, Partnerships with STEM-Rich Institutions, outlines several models of how after school programs can successfully partner with STEM-rich institutions. Resources include a series of new messaging tools to explain the value of expanded-learning systems and intermediaries to a diverse audience; as well as a new national study offering insight into what urban, low-income tweens want in an after school arts program.

Three Lessons on Regionalism
The online periodical Next City, recently published an article on the benefits of utilizing a regional approach to urban redevelopment. Potential benefits such as a broadened tax base, and better access to jobs for low-wage workers were found in assessments of regional revitalization initiatives in Paris, France; Cincinnati, OH; and Northeast Ohio. Click here to read the article.

Creative Placemaking Case Studies
The M.I.T. Department of Urban Studies and Planning recently published a research brief entitled Places in the Making: How Placemaking Builds Places and Communities that highlights the history, current challenges, and future of placemaking in neighborhood revitalization efforts. Case studies of placemaking projects from across the country are used to illustrate the relationship between communities, their built environment, and the processes, community engagement, partnerships, funding, and messaging necessary for success.
